	HILLEL'S SECRET DIARY
	Chapter 1: Registration Week (AKA The Worst Week Ever)
	Monday
	Today the government's "registration" beganaka Hunting Season for Hidden Kids.
	Teachers with clipboards marched around the block asking Mrs. Stein, Mrs. Goldberg, even Old Man Fishman, "Are there any school age children here?" My heart beat so loud I thought they could hear it through the walls.
	Unfairness rating: 9 out of 10 (10 is "getting stuck in maaser every week forever").
	Scheme idea #1: I tried to hide in the laundry basket. It sort of worked until my elbow popped out and the basket tipped over. Mrs. Stein saw my shoelace and shrieked. Daddy swooped in, "Just Rivka's sock!" Crisis averted barely.
	Tuesday BIG NEWS: We got a "secret knock" code today. It's:
	, late t
•	knock[]knock
•	pause (count 1-2-3 secretly)
•	knock[]knock[]knock
•	pause (1-2-3)

knock[knock]

If you get it wrong, everyone freaks out. I almost answered the door in my pajamas. Yikes.

Also, Mr. Daniel "the Yevsektsia escapee" came over to practice the code. He's the guy who used to work for the three letter police (NKVD, KGB...a real "button" on his coat). He told us how they tricked parents by switching all the Jewish teachers with their own people--like replacing your chocolate pudding with pea soup. Then they tried to force feed kids treif on Pesach!

Unfairness rating: 10 out of 10. Those brave kids who kept their mouths shut were real heroes. I just get stuck in laundry.

Wednesday

Today I had to sneak to the shul to slip Reb Mendel a note about our secret cheder. Of course, Chaim Tchernovitzer--the KGB's #1 "friend"--was there, flashing his ID and scaring everyone away. He tapped his watch and growled, "No children allowed here."

I tried hiding behind a pew (my best hiding spot so far), but my kipa stuck out.

Chaim spotted it, so I ducked even lower. My knee still hurts from bashing into the wood. Silly me-pew wood is harder than a brick wall.

cheme idea #2: Next time, bring kneepads.
nursday
eb Mendel arrived at night and did the secret knock perfectly. In came th	e world's hisperiest melamed. He taught us aleflibeis by lamplilight, like real Torah spie	s. My other Yankel and I mouthed the letters so quietly our own shadows sounded	loud.
ver lining: Learning in whispers is kind of awesome. I feel like a super[secre	. †
ent, but instead of stealing cookies, I'm stealing Torah. Best. Mission. Evo	er.
iday (Erev Shabbos)
egistration Week ends tonight. Parents can finally breatheif you ignore th	he 100
her ways we could get caught. Mommy and Tatty hugged us extra long whe	n Shabbos arted. I guess hiding is more exhausting than I realized.
nfairness rating: 8 out of 10 (because at least I'm not the one teaching wit	thout ppah in public school).
hat I learned this week:
Adults always whisper about "the net is tightening"I thought they were fish	ning for kids with actual nets!

 Secret cheder = the most thrilling thing ever (Torah spies rule.).
 My elbow still hurts, but next week I'm bringing kneepads.
Not as Clabba 1 the 1 th of a late to Character Discourse The Next up: Shabbos chills, challah, and plotting Scheme #3Operation Disguise: Fake Mustache Edition. Stay tuned!