Hillel's Secret Diary

Sunday, August 23rd

My name is Hillel and I'm 8 years old. I live in Samarkand with my family. I'm writing this diary in SECRET because if anyone finds it, we could be in BIG trouble.

Here's the thing - I'm not supposed to exist. Well, I mean, I exist, but the neighbors can't know I exist. It's SUPER weird.

My tatty says the government wants all kids to go to their schools where they teach you that Hashem doesn't exist (can you believe that?!). So we have to hide. Like, actually HIDE. IN OUR OWN HOUSE.

I can't even go outside during the day. Do you know how boring that is?

Monday, August 24th

Today I watched thi	rough the curtains as other kids played outside. I wanted to	go SO BAD but Mommy said "Not during chool hours, Hillel. So	omeone might see you."
My older brother Yan	nkel is 12 and he's been hiding even onger than me. He's r	never been to school AT ALL. He's like a professional hider a	t this point.
1y sister Rivka went	to school today. I feel bad for her.
She has to sit there	and listen to them say crazy things about how there's no	Hashem. But Tatty says it's the only vay to keep the gove	ernment people from getting suspicious about us boys.
When she comes home,	, we spend HOURS teaching her real stuff
to fix what they put	in her head at school.

Something scary happ	pened today. There was a knock at the loor and it WASN'T	our special knock!

Knock knock Wait Knock knock Wait Knock knock If someone doesn't do it exactly right, we all PANIC. Yankel and I have to run and hide in the back room. Anyway, today someone just knocked regular and Mommy's face went WHITE. She whispered "Quick! To the hiding spot! Turns out it was just the mailman. But for like five minutes I thought we were DONE FOR. Wednesday, August 26th Mr. Daniel came over again today. He used the special knock	-	Oh yeah, I forgot to tell you about our special knock. It

o help the g	overnment trick parents into sending their kids to the bad s	hools. He looked like he wanted to cry when he alked about	the kids who wouldn't eat treif even when the teachers trie	d to force them.
"THOSE	CHILDREN WERE HEROES," HE SAID. "REAL HEROES."
I want to b	e a hero too. But right now I'm just a kid hiding n my house.

and one teac	ner asked her. My heart was beating SO FAST. But she just shr	gged and said she didn't know of any.
Phew. That	was close.
Mommy says	this happens every summer before school starts.
They call it	"registration." More like "hunting for hidden kids" if you	isk me.
Friday, A	ugust 28th Erev Shabbos
Getting read	y for Shabbos is tricky when you're hiding. We have to be s	per careful about everything.
Mommy was	reaching me and Yankel the parsha today. She said that Yidden	have always had to be strong, even when things were hard. "	Just like now," she said.
I asked her	how long we have to hide like this. She said,
"Until Hashe	m decides it's time for things to change."
I hope it's s	oon. I really want to play outside.

Motzei Shabbos, August 29th
Tonight after havdalah, Tatty told us we're going to have a secret melameid come teach us. But it has to be SUPER secret. Even more secret than this diary.
He said when the melamed comes, hell use our special knock.
And we can NEVER tell ANYONE about him. Not even other kids.
Even if they're Jewish kids.
This is getting complicated. I need to remember:
Hide from neighbors during school hours
• Special knock: 2, pause, 3, pause, 2
Never talk about our melamed
Pretend I don't exist if anyone asks Being a Jewish kid in Samarkand is like being a secret agent, except not fun.
Sunday, August 30th Bad news. Tatty heard from the other parents that the

1	principal found out about the Friedman kids who weren't in ,	school. Their parents had to send them to stay with relatives in another city!
(Can you imagine? Having to leave your parents just because (Dur melamed came for the first time today! His name is Reb lendel and he has the longest beard I've ever seen.

+	de taught us alef-beis with little songs. He whispered the '	shole time, even though we were inside our own house. When I
1	sked why, he said "The walls have ears in Samarkand."
_	That's creepy. Do walls really have ears here? I looked but

Sc	hool started today. Not for me and Yankel - we watched fr	om the window as kids walked by with their backpacks.
R	ivka had to go. She looked so sad. Tatty gave her a big hug ar	d whispered something in her ear. Probably reminding her
th	at everything they teach her about no Hashem is sheker

I,	m glad I don't have to go. But also it would be nice to Μ	ommy taught us about how we came to Samarkand today. She Sd	id when I was 3, the Nazis came to our city Kharkov and we ha	d to run away.

I don't remember it, but she said I was SO hungry on the trip and our non-Jewish neighbor wanted to give me food but it wasn't kosher. She said I cried and cried but she didn't let me eat it.
"Even when you were tiny, you kept kosher," she said proudly.
I guess I've always been fighting to be Jewish. Even when I was too little to know it.

CLOCE CALL TODAY
CLOSE CALL TODAY!
A teacher came to our door! Not our special knock! Mommy pushed me and Yankel into the back room so fast I almost tripped.
We could hear her at the door: "Hello, I'm from the school.
Do you have any children?"

Mommy said, "Just my daughter, she's already enrolled."
"No boys?" the teacher asked.
"No," Mommy lied.
I held my breath. Yankel put his hand over my mouth just in case.
Finally the teacher left. Mommy didn't let us come out for another ten minutes, just to be safe.
My heart is STILL beating fast.
Friday, September 4th Erev Shabbos Tatty came home early to help prepare for Shabbos. He looked tired. More tired than usual.
He said the government is getting stricter about kids in school. More and more families are having to send their boys away to hide with relatives.

"\	Nill we have to leave?" I asked.
	"IM YIRTZEH HASHEM, NO," HE SAID. "BUT WE MUST BE EVEN MORE CAREFUL."
Μ	ORE careful? How is that even possible? I already can't le	ave the house.
В	eing Jewish here is the hardest thing ever. But Tatty says
+	hat's what makes us strong.
I	hope he's right.
- T	HE END (of this notebook)
1)	Tommy got me a new notebook to keep writing. She says it's ir	aportant to remember these times. But I have to hide this
o	ne REALLY well first.)
